

Britney turns Malibu home IN

BRITNEY SPEARS has trashed her rented Malibu house, leaving the place with thousands of dollars in damages – and the owners are furious, say sources.

The human wrecking ball rented the six-bedroom, six-bath, fully-furnished house last September for a whopping $35,000 a month. But when Britney left, the owners found broken windows, scratched marble floors, stained carpets and broken cabinets, an insider revealed.

Incredibly, the pop tart didn't even live in the $3.5 million home – but still managed to turn it into a pigsty, say sources.

A PIGSTY

Thousands in damages include:

- Broken windows
- Stained carpets
- Ruined furniture
- Cigarette burns

"The house was left a wreck," revealed the insider. "Cigarette burns and cigarette butts were everywhere – and empty bottles of wine were strewn about the place.

"Most of the furniture was ruined with stains, tears or nicks. Other items, like an expensive vase in the kitchen and patio furniture, were broken. The granite kitchen countertops were damaged, as well. Rotting food was left in the refrigerator," said the insider. "Spilled wine soiled the carpets and floors."

The outside landscaping wasn't kept up, either, and the pool turned green from lack of attention, added the insider.

"No one picked up after Britney's dogs, and many 'presents' of dog poop were left behind for the owners."

Britney used the rental as a party house and hasn't been there since her hospitalization in January, according to the insider.

The rent was paid through March, and the singer's handlers gave notice she would be leaving at the end of the month. Britney is now waiting for the final tally on the damages.

Concluded another source: "It's unbelievable that someone living in such an expensive mansion would trash it."
