

BOOZING HILARY DUFF skates into trouble with boyfriend

A NIGHT of boozing and partying at a Hollywood nightclub nearly ended Hilary Duff's relationship with hockey player boyfriend Michael Comrie after she started flirting with an old boyfriend.

The former "Lizzie McGuire" star decided to get an early start on her 21st birthday celebration when she and Michael joined three of her girlfriends for drinks on Sept. 6 at the popular hotspot Hyde, 12 days before she reached the legal drinking age.

THE GROUP HAD A private table and "Hilary was mixing her own vodka cocktails from the bottles that were on her table - and they weren't the typical one-shot pours people usually get at a bar," an eyewitness told THE ENQUIRER.

"She was filling her glass about halfway full of vodka and topping it off with cranberry juice."

Hilary had two drinks and then let the good times roll. She stood, swaying back and forth, and dancing. Suddenly she spotted ex-boyfriend Frankie Delgado of "The Hills," whom she dated last year, and proceeded to flirt with him - right in front of Michael!

"After a few minutes of watching his girlfriend flirt with Frankie, Michael grabbed her by the hand and escorted her back to their table," said the eyewitness.

"It was obvious that he was furious."
"When they got back to the table, Michael gave Hilary a firm ultimatum: 'Sit down, be quiet and stop acting like a drunken teenager or I'm leaving!'"

Apparently, Hilary got the message - she toned down her behavior after Michael's tirade.

by ROBIN MIZRAHI

rmizrahi@nationalenquirer.com

Hilary and Michael shop on Sept. 7

Flirting with her ex doesn't score with hockey player

Hilary started celebrating her 21st birthday 22 days early