

Lindsay celebrates her 21st birthday with friends and family, including mom Dina (right), on July 2

Lindsay A YEAR

The shocking untold story

In the past 12 months, Lindsay Lohan has spent a mind-boggling $260,000 feeding her addictions to drugs such as cocaine and OxyContin.

Friends fear Hollywood's hardest partying starlet - who has been in and out of two rehabs in the past six months - will die within the year unless she can kick her addictions once and for all.

"Lindsay has spent an average of $5,000 a week for more than a year on drugs, and unless she finds a way to sober up - she's going to wind up in an early grave," a friend told The ENQUIRER.

Lindsay checked into Promises rehab in Malibu, Calif., on May 28 after a drugged-out Memorial Day weekend in which she crashed her car and was cited for DUI. Just two days later, she was photographed passed out in the car of lesbian friend Samantha Ronson after a hard night of chubbing.

Police found cocaine in her vehicle, and toxicology reports have since shown that she had cocaine and nearly twice the legal limit of alcohol in her system. Lindsay, who turned 21 on July 2, is set to be arraigned by the Beverly Hills Police Department on Aug. 24.

Before that crash she was partying harder than ever. One friend revealed: "I watched Lindsay snort cocaine and pop OxyContin - then wash it all down

I watched Lindsay snort cocaine and pop OxyContin - then wash it all down with vodka with vodka. Lindsay loves to get wasted.

"Before she was even 18, Lindsay was already consuming vast amounts of drug and alcohol," said her friend.

"Staying out all night, smoking, drinking and taking drugs soon became her lifestyle - and she loved it, even more than her work."

By the end of 2004, Lindsay was partying non-stop, had three ca

