

LINDSAY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Continued from page 14

"She was like a whirling dervish talking an incoherent blue streak and dancing maniacally. Often, she'd race over to the CD player and change song before it barely started."

When her coke supply dwindled, the nasty phase of Lindsay's party cycle kicked in.

"She ranted at one of her hangers-on: 'I don't care if you don't want to go to that part of town. I gave you the money, and if you don't get that coke for me, don't bother coming back!'" her friend divulged.

"By this time Lindsay's eyes were red rimmed and she was sweating like crazy."

When the host ran out of Grey Goose, Lindsay went on another rampage.

"She screamed: 'So go get some more, you (bleep)!" her friend recalled. When Lindsay was told the liquor stores were closed and was offered Scotch instead, she flipped out.

"SHE CRIED: 'I WANT MY BRAND – and want it now! Why won't anyone give me what I want?"

Then she grabbed a corkscrew and ran into the bathroom crying like a spoiled child.

"Seconds later I heard her scream through the door: 'I'm going to kill myself! Everyone's against me! No one understands me!"

"A few minutes later she emerged trembling with her arms dripping blood. She'd cut up her wrists with the corkscrew."

Fortunately, the cuts were superficial.

"It was still a dramatic and horrific sight," said the friend.

Lindsay had a towel wrapped around each wrist. Then she reached for her pillbox and swallowed Xanax to make her sleep.

"But it was sad beyond words to witness her trying to kill herself."

But in a blockbuster ENQUIRER investigation, one of Lindsay's hard-partying pals has broken his silence to reveal that the troubled actress indulged in a non-stop three-day drug and booze binge that ended with her arrest.

Lindsay with assistant Tarin Graham

Just eight days after her release from the Promises rehab center, 21-year-old Lindsay was wasted on cocaine, OxyContin, Ecstasy and booze, according to the source.

On Saturday July 21, Lindsay "went to the Polaroid Beach House in Malibu – her home base since leaving Promises – and began guzzling vodka," the friend disclosed.

"The ankle bracelet alcohol monitoring device that she'd volunteered to wear after her rehab stint was a joke. She took it off and put it on at will.
