'Mean Girl' Lindsay in screamfest with Mom

PARTY girl Lindsay Lohan reduced her mother Dina to tears, telling her to "go to hell" in a public shouting match at a chic New York restaurant.

Ironically, the "Mean Girls" star berated her manager mom for partying too much and embarrassing her in a restaurant packed with celebrities including Serena Williams, Ryan Cabrera and Brandy. But the very next day, Dina rushed to Lindsay's side when she broke her wrist in a nasty fall.

The volatile mother-daughter relationship exploded during Dina's 44th birthday party at the upscale Chinese restaurant Philippe.

Dina and four pals were already into their second bottle of bubbly when Lindsay arrived - and sources say the two were soon screaming at each other.

An irate Lindsay told her mother to "go to hell!" then stormed out, leaving Dina in tears. When a birthday cake arrived a short while later, Dina began bawling loudly. According to published reports, Dina had to be helped out of the restaurant after paying the $2,000 tab.

The following night Dina rushed to Lindsay's aid after the accident-prone 20-year-old actress fell and broke her wrist in two places at a party. She was taken to Manhattan's St. Vincent's Hospital.

"Dina rushed in from Long Island to play nursemaid to Lindsay," said Lindsay's close pal.

"But unless her mom gets her act together, it's going to be difficult for Lindsay to take her seriously as a parent."
