A year ago, Mary-Kate Olsen was in rehab battling anorexia. But today, as these happy pictures show, the 19-year-old actress is fit, healthy – and very much in love.

Mary-Kate was literally jumping for joy with new boyfriend Stavros Niarchos III on vacation on Maui, Hawaii.

Greek shipping fortune – spent a week in the island sun sightseeing and relaxing in a rented beach-front home.

A few miles away, Niarchos' family was also renting a house and the lovers would drop by and play on a trampoline in the backyard. "Mary-Kate looked great," said an eyewitness who caught them kicking up their heels. "She was smiling a lot, and looked really happy. She was thin as usual but looked healthy and toned.

"A bunch of kids who looked like Stavros' cousins were playing on the trampoline, and they jumped off so Mary-Kate and her beau could have a little one-on-one fun.

"When they thought no one was looking, Mary-Kate leaned close to Stavros, and he bent over and kissed her."

The lovebirds had plenty of private time on the early July vacation. They went to breakfast at a local coffee shop, where the star of TV's Full House bought her habitual iced blended mocha drink, and to the drug store to load up on sunscreen. Later they were seen re turning to their love nest where they sunbathed next to the backyard swimming pool.
