Nicole Kidman is rushing ahead with plans for a secret spring wedding to country superstar Keith Urban as speculation grows that she's having his baby!

That's what sources are saying about the once rail-thin Oscar-winner, who observers in Nashville say has seemed to put on weight - and is even showing a noticeable bump.

At the same time, sources reveal the Aussie couple have told family and friends to prepare for a low-key ceremony and reception in Fiji or Australia.

Said an insider: "Keith is recently sober, having beaten a cocaine addiction in the past few years, and was tentative about going ahead and making wedding plans so soon.

"But he's so head over heels in love with Nicole, he's giving the wedding the go-ahead.

"And Nicole is the happiest she has ever been. She's usually skinny but has put on weight in recent weeks, giving rise to rumors that she may be pregnant. Nicole certainly is looking like a happy and contented mommy-to-be to me."

Nicole and Keith, both 38, spent Christmas together at the singer's $2.5 million Nashville estate and there were rumors that they would tie the knot over New Year's.

But now sources say Nicole - who has been sporting a 3.5 carat diamond ring - is urging Keith to announce the engagement in the next few weeks with the quickie wedding to follow.

The insider revealed: "The most likely sites for the late March or April wedding are Australia or The Wakaya Club in Fiji."

Some reports last month suggested the couple had hit a rocky patch over Keith's past. But another source said: "Keith and Nicole are together all the time, making plans for the wedding and beyond. Keith has a sordid past, but he has found happiness and is not about to screw it up - especially if he's going to be a dad as well as a groom."
