that when our company was reviewing a list of names, Sally Kirkland was mistaken for Sally Kellerman...Please accept my sincerest apologies for this mistake."

THE 63-YEAR-OLD ACTRESS, WHO HAS BEEN IN showbiz for 45 years, was livid – and ready to throw the promoter overboard, revealed a close source.

"Sally was fit to be tied. She was so flattered they invited her and had gotten psyched up for the event and for receiving an easy $10,000.

"Then she received the letter saying they didn't want her, that they wanted Sally Kellerman. She was counting on the money and had arranged her schedule. It really stung."

Kirkland, who had a role in the 1973 movie "The Sting" and was nominated for an Oscar for the 1987 film "Anna," is often confused with Kellerman, 71, who played "Hot Lips" in the 1970 classic movie "M*A*S*H."

Sally Kirkland has recently been working on her own TV reality show, said the close source.

A FURIOUS Sally Kirkland is making waves after her appearance aboard a cruise ship was suddenly canceled.

The actress is enraged at a video game promoter for inviting her – and then uninviting her – on the cruise after they mistook her for "M*A*S*H" star Sally Kellerman, THE ENQUIRER has learned.

Kirkland had received a formal invitation to the promotional gala, requesting a "personal appearance by Sally Kirkland on Carnival Cruise Lines for a very special event," adding that "the deal must be closed within 7 days." The payment for her appearance was to be $10,000.

But a day after the actress signed the memo, she received additional correspondence from the organizer that was a huge slap in the face. It explained the invitation was a mistake: "It is with great embarrassment that I must tell you

CNN star tells all: HIS SHOCKING BATTLE WITH ALCOHOL & SUICIDE

WISECRACKING Glenn Beck, whose self-titled program airs on CNN's Headline News cable channel, isn't joking when he says alcohol and drugs nearly killed him.

In his new book titled, "An Inconvenient Book," Beck says doctors told him he'd be dead in six months if he kept abusing his body. "I was trapped in my own selfishness and greed and ego until I bottomed out and realized death is the next step," Beck, 43, wrote in the book.

Eight months after the doctors' warning, Beck says he was still drinking and doing drugs.

"I was suicidal. My mom took her life when I was 13. I was one of the few able to change and restart. My key to recovery was knowing what I believe. I, for most of my life, was afraid of myself."

Beck was a Top 40 DJ in the 1990s and says his early success in life turned him into a "monster."

"I was not a good guy," he said.

But Beck reveals he found God and turned his life around.

"I believe I personally impacted the state of Tennessee when I sobered up," he said, a reference to state revenues from his alcohol purchases.
